ONCE more, we note, the so-called " Heavensent Barrier" is occupying the attention of the Shanghai community. The Woosung Bar has been a vexed question and standing grievance in the Model Settlement almost ever since the opening of Shanghai as a Treaty Port. > 26.—Bamboo.—In my annual report for 1882 I stated that I had brought together in one collection twenty five kinds of bamboos. These have continued to do well, and some further additions have been made. I hope whenever there is an opportunity to still further increase the collection. The hamboos of China are of great interest and utility and many of them are probably unknown to science. It is impossible to assign them to their true places in systematic botany until flowers are obtained from which a complete and satisfactory study of them can be made. The bamboo flowers at such long intervals that if we trust to travellers being able to furnish the desired flowering specimens the day will be very for distant when the study will have Gardens, is that when flowers are produced they can be immediately secured for investigation. 27.- A year or two ago Dr. MucGowan kindly sent me specimens of the very interesting square survive the passage. 31 .- Vitis Martinii (?) - The Cochin China vine again yielded a very heavy crop of fruit. This has received a good deal of attention in America where it is being experimented with as a new wine producer. For this purpose it has been spoken of favourably. It is possible that in some climates which are nusuitable for the cultivation of the gransvine this one might be of considerable service. I tried the fruit in tarts, and the fizvour was found to be good and palatable, but the large seeds are objectionable: however, it is possible, that cultivation. The large leaves of the plant give it a distinguished and ornamental appearance which is an additional recommendation for its finding a place in tropical gardens, if not even in hot-houses of temperate climates. 33.—Plant Sales.—The demand for plants continnes to steadily increase. During the year 1,918 plants were sold, and they realised $409.35. The sales would have been greater if the supply had been equal to the demand. Means are not adequate for the cultivation of certain kinds of plants, but I hope that a re-arrangement of nursery appliances, and an extension of the ground which will be affected this year will place us in a botter position to meet public requirements, and a growing taste for, plants. A Glass-house fifty feet long is course of construction, when finished it will be used for propagation and growth of delicate plants which in the early stages of growth require its protection.
